

Hey-O

Hey-o, just once, let me sing to you
While the sun sits resting and the gulls come calling
Out in the marsh where the geese are nesting
And I just keep falling, it's just up and down, up and down

Out on the Island let me think of you
Without feeling so doubtful of myself and of you, too
Sometime in the night I'll sing you gently to the moon
Tell the stars about you, let the wind caress you
Carry you to a finer light

Carry me to a calmer night
I keep falling, it's just up and down
I don't know whether to remember or forget you
While the marsh hawks are swooping and the Red Tails soaring
Why is there no way I can accept your silence
Though I understand it well

When I think of the few hours I knew you for
I don't understand why I feel this way
And it gets stranger every day

Hey-o, let me think on you
While the sea swells are rolling and the waves come crashing
Up on the hill where the berries grow for picking
And maybe I'm just crazy, but I don't know what to do, what to do
